as not to "prejudice the advance of India through the new constitution to full responsibility for its own government."

The proposed constitution provides for a central and for provincial legislatures.

The provincial legislatures are to hold such powers as are not specifically given to the central authority. In this the term chosen is the constitution of the United States, not that of Canada, since in this Dominion the provinces exercise powers only as are delegated to them by the act of confederation, the residue

This arrangement is obviously based on recognition of the fact that India is not a nation; but a congeries of states, differing in race, religion, tongue, traditions and ideals, which are proposing to link themselves together in a political alliance.

Home rule will not therefore mean uniform laws throughout India, and the central authority is not likely to be overloaded with powers or prestige.

Is the Success or Failure of Marriage the Wife's Responsibility?—Why the Girl Who Drinks, Smokes and Pets Can't Hold a Boy Friend

DEAR MISS DIX—I heard a man assert the other day that the woman either made him love or hate it, and that if the husband and wife did not get along it was the wife's fault, because she had failed somewhere. What do you think?

Answer: Many men appear to have the naive belief that women are miracle workers who can make a happy home out of thin air, and who possess some occult power of charming even a cold heart of a husband into amiability and good nature. But this is a superstition that has no foundation in fact.

Making a happy home is a two-handed job that takes a man and woman working together to pull off. No woman alone can succeed and without any co-operation from her husband can any more make a happy home than he could build a skyscraper by himself.

No home can be a happy home in which the woman at the head of it is petulant and fretful and complaining or nagging or melancholy or high-tempered. No home can be a happy home unless it is well kept, unless it is clean and orderly and has well-matched furniture.

No one can imagine a husband and children laughing joyfully at a home in which there is a shadow of a wife and mother, so that she is slovenly and dirty and where they will sit down to a meal that would kill an ostrich.

But, on the other hand, no woman, even if she has the disposition of an angel and can cook like a French chef, no matter how kind and good and intelligent she may be, can make a happy home if there is a man who is a drunkard in it, or if there is a surly brute in it, or if the man at the head of it is a mean, grinding tyrant who makes covering slaves of his wife and children.

No, no woman can make a happy home by herself, or get along with an ill-natured husband. If you have, however, you will find that in the really happy homes there is always a cheerful, affectionate man who does his part in making a happy home, instead of obstructing the whole job on his wife. DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a girl 20 years old, a good-looking blonde, intelligent, drink, pet and go on wild parties, but cannot hold a boy friend. Why is that?

Answer: You have said it, my dear. The reason that you cannot hold a man is simply because you smoke, drink, pet and go on wild parties. As long as you do that you will probably have plenty of dates, except a date for the altar.

Men like to go about with the girls who smoke, drink, pet and go on wild parties, because they are gay and amusing companions for an evening. But that's all. They are just playthings. Girls that serve first class and that men throw away when they have their back and get a little bedraggled with too much handling. Broken toys.

These are old-fashioned ideas, you see. True, but men are old-fashioned in their ideas about women. They will play with the playthings and give them a jolly good time, but when they marry they want in their wives just exactly what their fathers wanted in theirs: Purity, cleanliness, sweetness, modesty, love faithfulness, all the old-fashioned feminine virtues. They want a girl who believes in everything that is good, who believes in God and kneels down and says her prayers at night.

MADAM'S NAMES
Question 1. I am writing to you now in order to settle an argument. A friend of mine claims that I should drop my dear husband's name entirely, now that I am entitled to use his name in a social way, and keep my own name for business purposes. Which of us is right? WIDOW.

Question 2. How should I sign my name (M. J. John Smith) in personal correspondence and in business correspondence? M. J.

Question 3. My husband and I have a checking account. Before I was married my name was M. J. Let Ray Mead, and I am married to John Green River. Should I sign checks Violet R. or Violet M. River, or Mrs. John G. River?

AUTUMN BRIDE.
Answers 1 and 2. A married woman or a widow's legal name is M. J. Smith; that is her signature, when registering as a voter and when writing orders. Her social name may be Mrs. John Smith. This is written to servants, under her legal name, if she is writing to a stranger.

INK SPOTS
Miss often takes ink spots out of corners of letters when used immediately. There is little use worrying with anything but a regular ink remover later on.

STICKY DISHES
When food sticks to the pan, add a little bicarbonate of soda in cold water and let the pan heat on the stove so and let the water slowly. You may be surprised how much comes off without any rubbing.

PERSEMONO ICE CREAM
A new dessert that is delicious is persemono ice cream. Add four lbs. persemono, peeled and sliced, to one quart of ice cream, powdered and a dash of grade A milk, stir thoroughly and freeze.

Morning Frocks Take Note From Afternoon Styles

Longer Skirts and Waisted Bodice Favored by

By JEAN PATON

PARIS, Jan. 20.—In spite of the clear-cut look of informal clothes, it is an easy matter to trace the progressive evolution of the mode in the various styles offered.

These clothes for informal wear now constitute, in the composition of a woman's wardrobe, a very definite category wherein the direct influence of afternoon style can clearly be seen. I say influence, because the clothes now set aside for afternoon wear have a very distinct character of formality.

The length of skirt, one of the most important features of the morning costume, is one that would not be allowed for a strict sports outfit. It is longer and the waisted bodice both features proper to more formal dress.

But, supplied in morning dresses, still another point is the bloused effect, never seen in tailored clothes because it invariably goes with a fitted hip jacket.

Although simplicity is the keynote of these ensembles or dresses, several of the more formal fashion features are used in their creation as, for example, the beque and the tulle.

and the coloring of the new fabrics, such as the new shades of blue, green, yellow, orange, red, pink, purple, etc. Whatever trimming employed in these new ensembles must be light in color, in direct contrast to the accented colors which are invariably dark and both have to be in line with the general simplicity. For several years, the new shades of blue, green, yellow, orange, red, pink, purple, etc. have been the rule of color.

A lot of dark, with really simple direct contrast to the formal style supplied by the trim.

While women or broken checks still are enjoying a considerable vogue for early morning outfit, I value the modern style with the simple or modified design, which I consider newer. These fabrics need very little trimming being almost sufficient unto themselves.

Morning dresses have also borrowed from afternoon styles that seemingly narrowness of skirt and flowing silhouette, with the difference that an ingenious cut makes them perfectly comfortable for walking.

Trousers of fur are usually successful in perfectly proportioned to the model, but require a good deal of study to achieve satisfactory results.

If so desired, a jacket can be added to these morning dresses, although they are absolutely complete alone and are usually so worn. But if a skirt demands a jacket, it must fulfill the requirements of perfect ease of movement, lightness and moderate length, but be far trimmed or not, as desired, but can be his other way.

The features to accompany these quite important clothes need not be practical nor so severe as for sports wear, but must not fall into any too painful or dreary ideas. The perfecting, I think, is fashioned of the same materials as the ensemble. If this is of the checked or speckled tweed, an inconspicuous handle of clasp is noticed. If a plainer fabric is used, the bag can stand a frame or handle of some precious wood or metal. To fashion the bag in the same material to set off such a morning costume is a mistake, but inconspicuous in the hat of matching or contrasting felt will just lend the whole ensemble that finished look which is so difficult to acquire.

If a note of color is needed to tone up the general effect, this should be placed in the bag and hat in the guise of motif and perhaps also in the handkerchief. Embroidered motifs are always good, as several colors can be combined in them.

Shoes are another item to be carefully considered. Flat-heeled sports shoes are obviously not shoes, but shoes are high, tapering boots. Perfectly plain pumps of box calf or kid, with moderate casual heels of leather or a fancy lace shoe are the best styles to select.

NEW WOOLENS
Wool net and wool marquette are two of the more and livelier new fabrics that make charming frocks to wear with the fur coat.

Anesthetized morning, a lark's clear song starts a summer's day along:
A humming bird hovering at a vine
And noon's clear sun is like new wine,
A little wind at sunset—
And a sweet summer's day is through.

A fever morning and dew-dew flags
Late autumn's sun forever lags—
Grateful warmth at noontide glen
After wind with cloud has driven:
Ruddy sunset, a saffron star—
An autumn day has passed the bar.

A frosty morning, sharp and clear
The sun over southern dells doth peer:
At noon a maple flag across
A misty haze of silks and moss:
The sun dips behind a purple cloud
A winter day's wrapped in her shroud.

A silvery green, fragile and pale
Along a southern haggard vale:
A blue bird wings the south,
A soft wind kissed me on the mouth.
O little winds of spring—
More promises you can't fulfill.

“I guess I know how you feel,” he admitted. “It IS nice to have beautiful clothes but they are a great care—and—well sometimes I wish I had just a little plain brown coat like Mrs. Peter.” There was just a sad smile in his voice.

“Oh, Winsome, how can you say that?” Winsome how can you say

ONLY LOCAL INTEREST ON WHEAT MARKET

Canadian Press
WINNIPEG, Jan. 20.—Local interest only was shown on the wheat market today. Moving within a range of one cent, notwithstanding the prices closed with some of a lower to level.

Lower values on foreign markets caused the weakness in Winnipeg and only the absence of selling pressure prevented a wide price break. Some export business was worked over in Canada when a total of 400,000 bushels of wheat was shipped.

May wheat future was quoted at 50 1/2 cents per bushel at the close and for October were selling at 47 1/2 cents respectively. The price of cash wheat and oats and barley were also active features. The cash and export grain section. Fractionally higher prices prevailing.

“Life Insurance Day”
Is January 21st
Why not find out whether your present Life Insurance will pay you at least $100 a Month for Life?

Are you one of those policyholders who, after securing life insurance, have promptly dismissed the matter from your mind?
Ask Yourself These Questions:
How much income will my policy provide for me in the years of my life?
How do my present policies fit into a general program of financing for the present and the future?
How can my ordinary life insurance be made to provide an “income” for my beneficiary?
If you can answer answers to these and other questions from the Canada Life Insurance Company, you have found out whether your present life insurance will pay you at least $100 a Month for Life.

This coupon will bring you by mail a new form which explains the making of a “Personal Inventory.” If you are really anxious to have a true valuation of your present estate this is an opportunity for you. Why not mail this coupon today?
